To go further, I would say this game also looks very beautiful on the PS4 and the PC. The art direction makes a marvelous effort to this game and in a way of making the dark forest world really live. I also love the different clothes that you can wear, the different enemies that you encounter, and the different traps that you find. I might have a bias because I love World of Warcraft and I've been a fan of this series since the first Star Ocean got released. I'm not going to claim this is the most epic or best RPG released this year, but it is a new product from an arguably big name studio that is trying to expand. I have no idea what to expect from them and I don't know if this series will catch on or not. This is a fairly standard RPG/action game. You have a main story that is a text only story in a pretty linear line. But you have the ability to do side quests and side objectives that open up the game a bit. The story is decent. It's got some nice elements to it. It's not as deep as the main story in World of Warcraft, but it's not completely shallow either. The characters do have a few quirks to them and there are some cool twists at the end. It's an enjoyable game. But it can get slow. At times you feel like you're just watching something and not actually playing. The story tends to drag in certain places. There's a lot of filler that throws you off track and slows down the game. The game world is excellent. It is vast and beautiful. All the locations I visited looked wonderful. They did a great job giving you an adventure through a beautiful world. Since you can travel between continents, the game designers made sure to include all the things you'd expect from an RPG, like dungeons. There are a lot of these and they vary in difficulty. The game is pretty linear but there are plenty of optional dungeons you can have. I haven't even tried them all. They're impressive in their design and complexity and that's a good thing. There are countless things to discover. Like the great cities that are scattered throughout the world. They provide lots of side quests, a glimpse into the culture of the people and general world wide events. For a free game, the multiplayer is enjoyable and intriguing. It's over the top yet innocent. You have your main character, who is customizable. You can be a warrior, mage, or a ranger. The three races in the game are human, elven,
