Q: Question about my take on the routine proof for FOS to security parameter  $\epsilon$  In the proof of the EOS scheme (Goldreich 2006, exercise 3.2.12.2) given in Polacheck (2011, exercise 16.7.4.4) the author asks us to elaborate on why the introduction of random oracle calls (and thus the removal of the oracle from the construction) will lead to a stronger security analysis. I feel like the author seems to be saying that the probability of us being in a distinguisher's queries might be affected, but I'd like to know if I'm missing something. I am skimming through the paper Polacheck presents and I am just trying to understand (since he didn't spell it out in the original challenge). I have that for some key pair  $(R,E)$ , where  $R$  is a random oracle, the SIDH construction will construct a function  $F(x,b) \in \{0,1\}^*$ , and  $E = g^{(1^F)}$  is given by a squaring process where  $g$  is some private key:  $F_1 = g'(x)$  For  $i \geq 1$ :  $F_i = F_{i-1}^{g^i(x)}$  \text{ where }  $g^i = g \ast g \ast \dots \ast g$  is concatenation of  $i$  copies of  $g$  And the question the author seems to be asking us is how the fact that  $g^i(x)$  is run through a random oracle and then  $F_i$  is run through that oracle, affects the probability of the distinguisher being in a random oracle call, and concluding that we are given  $\$E\$$  at least once in some given search space. Also, I am confused how the answer the author

THE NEW FANTASY ACTION RPG. Rise, Tarnished, and be guided by grace to brandish the power of the Elden Ring Activation Code and become an Elden Lord in the Lands Between. STORY: The war of the Elden Ring 2022 Crack and the dominion of the Elden Tribe are far beyond the realm of man. It was the time when mankind was driven from the lands between, from the lands that men have been merely imagining for their entire history. The lands which lie between were now violently secluded from the world. But humanity could not accept it and a war rose to the surface. A brutal war of strength and will against strength and will, of the most powerful and the most distant. Humans lost and the lands between were secluded once again. However, in some distant mountains, the Elden Tribe was left alone without rivals, and in due time it thrived. Their young people protected from outside the shield of the mountain walls, their tribe prospered. They spread out, and now the Elden are everywhere, spreading bff6bb2d33
