In the best traditions of the craft, it's much more than a simple case of stamping. It's a hands-on process, using a tool that's similar to a rubber stamp, but quite a bit more sophisticated. It's used to create figurative art, but it can be applied to almost any project. I find stamping fun, and it's often used to make images where I can't normally achieve the same visual effect through other means. One of my favorite techniques is using stamps to create a dot pattern in an image, which can be a real eye-catcher. It's a simple, but effective, way of creating a texture in an image. My starting point is usually a photo or image that I like the look of, or I want to emulate. After doing some research, I'll know I'm after a certain effect and I'll work backward from there.

Living and playing in Switzerland, Sweden, the United States, and now in the United Arab Emirates are just a few of the places around the world that you can find Dan and Cheryl Christopher, otherwise known as "Joe and Dee" on their popular USA Network show, "Joey." On this episode of On the Wire, Doug DeMoss and producer/engineer Jerry Lauro talk with the Denton County duo about their day job as musicians (not going away anytime soon) and on-set rehearsals for filming. "I don't want to get too caught up in the vagaries of the business because it's funny to be a musician, but ... when I'm rehearsing, it's not rehearsing. It's really more of a game. We're just playing right now, so when I'm taking guitar lessons, I'm trying to play guitar ... I want to sound as good as possible." Cheryl on their musical background: "We're musicians in every sense of the word. We used to call ourselves 'the Joey Matthews' ... Being musicians, we know music. We understand it. The production aspect of it, we don't understand it, so for that, we hired a sound engineer." Doug on their musical background: "We grew up with the radio. My father was in the military for most of his life. He was stationed in Germany and in Central America, and those were the times that I was being raised. We lived in a house in Florida where all the rooms were filled with ... the radio! And he would have the Beatles, the Rolling Stones, and the Kingston Trio. We listened to everything. He liked everything. And he was an avid jazz fan, and I came to know it because when I was about 11, he bought me a bass guitar, and I started putting in a little jazz on the side. I listened to a lot of jazz; the record collection was just full of jazz."For all the kudos that David Copperfield has received for his "illusion of free will" experiments, there's one group of researchers who have begun to fill in the gaps. For years, the neuroscientist Jonathan Small and his colleagues have been studying the effect of illusory self-movements on the resting human brain.
