An ancient and powerful dragon magician has reincarnated. The old dragon magician was an ancient and powerful wizard who was busy resurrecting himself as a dragon magician and exterminating the world's dragons. Therefore, he is the Dragon King. Recruited by the Emperor, the newly reincarnated dragon magician defeated the Dragon King and adopted his name, "Crescent Moon Dragon." But if he fails to complete the Dragon King's plan, he will be punished. ALSO available in the game's main menu as a graphical costume Development Summary: All Effects All SFX are complete and well-composed, as was mentioned above. Music I also hope to release the original music in the future, which has a charming and magical feel. (Note: Square Enix, the company that develops and publishes RPG Maker, will cover any cost to reproduce the music.) "Earth's Last Remnant is an interesting indie RPG that puts exploration and tactical combat in the middle of one of the most enjoyable action RPGs of the past few years." 8/10 - Metro Gamer "The character creation is creative and I like that they didn't try to match the default classes, which is useful for altering them to your liking. There's also a ton of customization which helps to make this class more unique than many of the other elements. It's a fun break from the norm." 8/10 - Rock, Paper, Shotgun "Alongside the synth-pop soundtrack, the game's wide variety of game mechanics makes it feel more like the Dark Souls series than any other indie RPG." 8/10 - Pocket Gamer "The evolving combat is a good balancing act. The winning formula: Make it difficult and teach your player to use the tools at their disposal." 9/10 - Game Informer Company Newsletter Download the latest news for free via e-mail: Enter your E-Mail address to receive the latest news from grave yard road! This is our most recent game for the Micro:bit. It is a two player game, you and a friend will alternate between being the "tank" and the "robot". It is designed to help prepare you for the "Let's Code" challenge coming in 2018. It is also a challenge of it's own. Not only does it have four different tanks and four different robots, it also has up to 20 different buttons to press. Game Description: Watch your speed as you race around the track, avoiding as much damage as you can. Your tank is a key part of the game. If you damage the tank, you will lose more energy to lose more seconds in the race. Each game is a challenge in itself and there are many different paths to victory. The game takes place around a track and there are four different tanks with different powers and speed. The different tanks behave differently. Tanks Fire: Fire will burn you. You need to avoid getting close to the fire. Thrust: Thrust will push you and knock you off your course. Slow down: Slow down will slow you down. Gravity: Gravity will pull you down to the bottom and push you up the top. You also have 4 different robots. They are different in speed, strength, and how quickly they consume resources to move. Robots Turbo Boost: Your robot can boost up to 6 times when they land on a ramp. This is for the most part a speed boost. The more times you can turbo boost, the higher your score will be. Gravity Boost: The gravity is 20 units. Your robot can boost up to 5 times and then the gravity goes up to 40 units. Shield: When your robot gets hit by a tank, they will not lose as much health. Energy Bar: While it is blue, your robot can regenerate some energy. While it is red, your robot will be pushed back and the energy will disappear. You have a number of consumables to regenerate your energy and survive the race. You will not be able to use the turbo boost if your energy bar is depleted and you will be pushed back a long way. In order to start the game, you have to go up to the Start area. The controls are very simple. If you press the button, the robot will go forward, if you hold it, the robot will go backwards

What's new:

, OR WHAT THE HELL IS WRONG WITH US I didn't think it was possible, but Saturday-virgin Thursday night crawled by even faster than Wednesday's average. Sleep just never came. Besides, I was ready to throw on my camping equipment (tent, sleeping bag, gas stove) and go cruising around town for talkative nerds. Hey, if I had plans like that, I should move to Michigan. Here's the truth: my friends and I are pricks. And I know that I'm partly to blame. You see, most of us are still living with our parents. This means that we're usually sitting around waiting to be "sent away" - tomorrow, Wednesday, Saturday - and on our own for the weekend. This is when it's most likely for us to gather, line a row, and stare into a whiteboard, chatting shit about our stuff. It's like most of us are in a halfway house, waiting for some advantage in life that's going to turn us all into better, more prepared people - whatever that advantage is. For the most part, we're just getting by in school and life. We're living in "tombstones" as my mom would say. With all this self-reflection in mind, if we're going to attain anything useful in life, we'll need to learn how to be pricks - live comfortably with this fact - but make the most of all that introspection to figure out what makes us unique. So we gathered. We gathered outside at a bar called Case Malt before heading over to the School of DeWitt, a Christian rock band. After bouncing around a local pizza place and consuming food made by mom, we proceeded to warlock a bathroom and create some of the most accurate signatures we've ever conceived. We also talked shit about Carl, a friend of mine who is the Shakespeare of the group. He was surly on the phone for most of the night, bitching about people he doesn't even talk to anymore, but in his unique and making the most of it way - he started thinking about all these classes we could really take and he could sit in on, thinking about the future. I'm talking BLASTING off the walls and talking to himself. Like how he's running like a goddam train

For the year of 1114, the fallen Empire of Garrosh lies in ruin, its people starving, its borders overrun. The Scepter of the Hand is almost in the hands of the Horde. Three factions—the Vox, the Highborne, and the Trementine—are fighting a civil war to take it for themselves. Your actions will shape the outcome of this conflict, in a world where multiple factions vie for control of the royal capital of Kirath on a war-torn continent of Vardar. Your cause can be any one of the three factions, or none—all that matters is that you join one of the three and earn your own legend in the process. For the year of 1114, the all-or-nothing choice could only be yours. Key Features:

- Character progression and customization: Start the game on your own terms, utilizing a character's Skill Points and Resource Points as you see fit to your own unique play-style. Customize your character with a wide variety of clothing, weapons, armor, and more. Your character's appearance and skills will change through the course of the game as you earn experience by fighting your enemies and completing quests. • Skills: Each character's job is to use a specific set of Skills in combat. For example, your Tactician can use his Communication skills to convince enemies to surrender or even lure the enemy into a trap, while your Vanguard can use his Magic skills to call upon ancient mystical power. • A dynamic post-apocalyptic world: The year is 1114 AD, and the world has fallen to chaos. The City of Kirath—the capital of the Empire of Garrosh—is the last stronghold of freedom on a war-torn continent. Three factions—the Trementine, Vox, and Highborne—are vying for the control of the city. Players will take on quests that help influence the current events, or go it alone to forge a path in the world. • New dungeons for each faction: Each of the three factions have their own story to tell, with their own unique dungeons to conquer. The Trementine, for example, can explore the secrets of their ancestor's tomb, the Highborne can destroy the remaining Garrosh armies in their quest to end the civil war, while the Vox will encounter their long-lost guardians and try to unravel their secrets. • Dungeon and World War Boss Bonuses
