during his exile, karna saw the very hard life of a hermit. he said to his mother, "i am alone everywhere, my mother. i don't have one friend, a servant, or anything. the child i left behind is being well cared for. what happens to me? " karna was from the race of vrishala, a descendant of the race who descended from the moon. when he was thirteen years old he fought against the vrishalas. he killed many of them but gained the title of vikarna. however, he lost his nose, a huge and precious part of his body. his mother was upset on seeing the loss of her son's beauty and she encouraged karna to fight a war for satyavati, the wife of rama. krishna was at the crossroads of many things in life. he used to always live in the forest to protect himself. he was fond of the female gender. he felt no hostility or malice towards the female gender. and this was the basic theme of karna kunti: he used to save all the lives. he was the one who saved the female gender from every ill-intentioned person. i have uploaded the preview of karna kunti sambad "i remember. im everyones friend. everyones son. i cant be separated from my brothers. from arjuna, he was attached to me. from bhima, i could sense his love. from both of them, i felt that they had forgiven me. i could feel it. and i felt it deep in my heart. so, why should i fear death?. i had nothing to lose. as the son of a kirata, karna, he was attached to me. i could not be separated from his love. ive been his friend since childhood. i can live for his sake. krishna and arjuna were i think separated from me. arjuna felt a sense of separation. in the end, arjuna relented. both of them were obviously very attached to me. their lives were to be saved. in the end, i decided to keep both of them safe. krishna did not leave me alone. he was with me. he showed me how to live. he was like a great mentor for me. how could i live without him? we both were together. and arjuna and bhima were together too. how could i leave them behind?. even before they, were born, i felt that they would be the best of friends.
