The following texts are presented in this video: A Pastoreo is any form of corralling or herding of livestock. The most common kinds of pasture corrals are the chute, box, round corral, and the hula hoop corral. The traditional corral was built with wooden fences of planked or pole timber. Today, corrals are made of stainless steel, concrete, or fiberglass and wood. In Mexico, Argentina, and the United States, the old-style round corral was replaced during the 1880s and 1890s with the box corral. The round corral is still used in the southwest to corral roving herds of livestock being prepared for market. The most common type of corral in southern and southeastern Arizona was developed from the southwest style hogan. They have a two-foot fence that enclosed a small, open area where a small number of sheep were herded to graze on waste matter left by the processing of crops. published: 05 Feb 2014 Pastoreo Racional Voisin - English / Spanish PASTOREO RACIONAL VOISIN PDF BOOK is the ONLY English Version available.
