develops and markets an API: an application programming interface for trading applications. A trading application is a trading program that can be launched and used by a broker. It is responsible for generating trade orders. The Webotron platform is a framework based on the Java language that is embedded into a GUI (Graphical User Interface) that makes life easier for the broker. The main products developed by Webotron are: Algot trading system: a technical analysis and quantitative trading system based on technical indicators and a trading bot. It is a very easy to use GUI based software product for non-programmers.

Logic Trader: the most powerful and most used technical analysis trading software on the market. It is a Java based system that covers all market sectors. Webotron Chart: a graphical trading software solution for Forex brokers. MT4 Wizard: a Java-based software to convert any broker's order book in XML format and write it into one single file that is automatically synchronized by the broker and can be used by the Webotron charting system. Webotron Historian: a backtesting and statistics software for stock analysis. Webotron 5: a multi-currency charting software, that is a stand-alone trading system. StockTrend: an easy to use

backtesting software solution for stock analysis. StockTrend allows traders and analysts to conduct technical analysis on one, or multiple, stocks. With StockTrend you can easily set up your own technical indicators and apply them to a real stock data feed. It also has a user friendly GUI and the price charting is done via a semi-automatic system. With StockTrend you

It works well with Webotron Stocks Pro (see licenses). With Webotron Stocks you can do what other traders do: find trade opportunities. The technical analysis of stocks is often like a complicated mathematical "meal". Webotron Stocks transforms this

"meal" into something light and digestible. The technical analysis of stocks is based on a unique algorithm, which calculates BUY and SELL points. A traded stock is represented by a line, which is based on the recent price movements. The line is either above or below a price mark, which is determined by the Buy and Sell points. The line also shows which price mark is nearest to the price of the stock. Therefore, the line is interpreted as a support or resistance line. The calculation of support and resistance lines is based on the security level
